Sponsor a Teacher

The Global Sponsor Teacher

Project is designed to maintain the income of teachers from some of the world's poorest communities. Often unpaid for months on end, teachers try to keep going knowing that at least they have a job. Preparing lessons, marking work and keeping order in classes of up to 50 pupils is hard enough but doing so when there is no salary at the end of the month makes it a lot more difficult. Poor resources and lack of funding all add to the problems teachers in poor areas face, but their sense of duty and calling to serve the next generation drives them forward. Many of course sadly have to give up and so the system loses what is often their greatest asset, a trained and experienced teacher. Sponsoring a teacher breaks this trap and allows teachers to continue their valuable work affecting the whole community.

The benefits of sponsoring a teacher:

Many government schools in poor countries don't deliver quality education therefore private fee paying schools are set up to handle the education of the young. School teachers in these schools are only paid if there is enough income to do so. Often teachers are not paid for several months especially if poor parents are unable to pay school fees. One teacher can be allowed by law to teach up to 50 children in one classroom and so to sponsor a teacher will directly impact on the lives of up to 50 children. Sponsorship allows the teacher to continue on with his/her work without the interruptions trying to find income elsewhere thus maintaining quality education for all of the school's children. A good education delivered by well motivated teachers can set a child on the right course for the remainder of their life. Please consider how you can support this project making a great difference for children in the developing world.

What does it cost?

A Primary teacher's salary in the developing world can range from £60-£100 per month and for a secondary teacher £130-£180 per month. In order that you can be involved Mission International has set sponsorship units at £10/month. If you would like to be involved in sponsoring a teacher then please complete the attached form and see your donation change the lives of a whole community. Remember, a little goes a long way in the developing world.
